(TEXTO)*Estudo aponta que pessoas altas têm risco maior de desenvolver câncer

1 Pessoas altas têm um risco maior de desenvolver câncer, em parte porque elas têm mais células para que a doença se espalhe, de acordo com um estudo publicado. Pesquisadores nos Estados 5 Unidos analisaram a população em três continentes e descobriram que o risco de câncer em homens e mulheres é 10% maior para cada 10 cm de altura.
O câncer se desenvolve quando o controle normal pelo corpo das células deixa de funcionar, abrindo 10 caminho para o desenvolvimento de células cancerígenas que se manifestam como tumores. O estudo, publicado na revista "Proceedings of Royal Society B", sugere que o risco de desenvolver diferentes tipos de câncer é mais provável em 15 pessoas altas, simplesmente porque eles têm mais células e, portanto, maior probabilidade que essas células se tornem cancerosas.
